EXPLORING ENGAGING LANGUAGE

Read the short story, then complete the activities

As she crept along, her sharp claws click-clacked against the pavement, and her tail twitched with excitement. She was a predator, born to hunt, and she relished every moment of it.

Suddenly, she caught a scent on the air, a whiff of something tantalizing and delicious. Her nostrils flared as she followed the scent, her muscles coiling in anticipation.

With a final leap, she pounced on her prey, striking her teeth and claws into the warm bread.

With a final licks she licked her paws then strolled away from the back door of the bakery, to continue her hunt.

EXPLORING ENGAGING LANGUAGE

Read the short story, then highlight the figurative language according to the key.

The once serene mountainide was now chaos, as the volcano roared to life with a fearsome display of raw power. The powerful eruption was a cushion of destruction, as molten lava surged forward with an infernal fury, incinerating everything in its path.

The volcano's fiery rage was both awe-inspiring and terrifying, showing how nature could captivate and intimidate in equal measure.

The smoke billowed into the sky like a dark curtain, while the molten rock surged and spewed like a geyser of destructive fire. The lava was thick and black, the thick with the acrid smell of sulphur and burning vegetation. The ground shook so violently, as if the earth was alive.

As the eruption finally subsided, leaving behind a scorched landscape, the townspeople felt a sense of wonder and respect for the power of nature.

EXPLORING ENGAGING LANGUAGE

Read the short story, then co

As twilight blanketed the street, Lucy put on her mask, grabbed her hat and clutched her candy bucket. "Trick or treat! It's going to be so fun!" she declared, her heart racing with excitement.

With her friends, she approached a house. A woman in a glowing orange dress opened the door. "Trick or treat!" Lucy shouted. "It's been a wicked night, but we're here to knock on your door!"

A friendly ghost—well, a lady in a ghost costume—was standing in the doorway. "Trick or treat!" Lucy shouted. "It's been a wicked night, but we're here to knock on your door!"

As they ventured further, the wind howled and the leaves fell, sending shivers down Lucy's spine. "Did you hear that?" Lucy asked. "It sounded like a hundred witches cackling!" Her friends giggled, but they pressed on.
